Stories > Our latest stories > Outerwear for Every Occasion

It's the season for bundling up! It's also the season when wardrobe confusion is rampant. Anxiety-inducing questions like "Is that puffer jacket meeting-appropriate?" and "What jacket should I wear to the fall wedding in a barn?" pop up this time of year. Thus, the need for a guide just like this. We guarantee that come rain, snow or wind your outerwear will be the punctuation your outfit was missing. Scroll down to find your true match for any occasion in cool, crispy and all the way down to hard weather conditions.

For a Sunday walk by the river (Cool/Crispy)

These lighter jackets are perfect for a casual sunny stroll and look great with jeans. If you're facing a chillier day add some knits and mittens for a warmer walk.

For a cup of Joe in Central Park (Cool/Crispy)

Fall mornings are best enjoyed sitting on a bench at the park, and letting the fresh air hit your face as the coffee steam rises to warm you up quickly. It gets even better with a light jacket to keep you warm without overheating you.

For dinner with the in-laws (Cool/Crispy)

These jackets might not make you invisible if you say something awkward during the dinner, but they will make your wardrobe conundrum go away. Add confidence to a casual outfit with these jackets and see if your in-laws ask you for some style pointers. PS. They work perfectly fine for an apple-picking day with mom.

Vera Cotton Parka, Hunter Green

Hamilton Parka, Caviar Black

Benjamin Parka, Hunter Green

Glenn Field Jacket, Hunter Green

For a hike on the countryside (Biting)

Look equally put together and warm on a countryside hike as you do on a windy day hauling grocery back to your apartment. If the mercury drops even more, wear these jackets with knits and you'll forget that it's winter.
